Grant, Benton was very strong throughout, knocking the Giants to four hits, all made by Doyle and Joe Judge. The latter's drives were today bouncers that eluded fielders. Previous to today the Reds had lost fifteen straight games to the Giants. The landing of Ryan and a sensational one-run catch of the drive by Murray were among features of the contest. Score:

AMUSEMENTS.

Freshly painted and powdered, spick and span from cellar to garret, the Bijou is this season last night with Baker and Cusick's dramatic rearrangement of Harold MacGrath's novel, "The Goose Girl." Harry McNeill, all white-shoed and white-trousered, welcomed the audience.

"The Goose Girl" is very MacGuffin- which should be expressive enough to those who are at all familiar with the book. It turned out to be a very and seemingly prosperous person. HONORS ARE SPLIT

The women are better than the men, though the men are competent. Jeannie Howe makes a rather fetching heroine, and Virginia Vernon, the tall heroine, as the Goose Girl, is exceedingly clever and carries the part well. Alberta Norton looks regal enough and prettily just a royal. A sizable out of a Very Pleasant Part Of tops the list both as to ability and looks, though our old friend James H. Lewis kept up with the procession and was an instant favorite. The rest performed all that was required of them.

and excellent exhibition of the three Yocarrays, Gallardo, an artistic clay modeler, and Barbour and Lynn, in a Hube musical comedy offering, rounded out a vaudeville bill well above the average.

In the motion picture play section a Vitagraph comedy featured.

At the Empire.

Though H. T. MacConnell, "President of the 15 Club," is on his third visit to this city, he is as great a laugh-maker as when he first appeared here, and really carried off the honors of the new week's bill.

Cavanna and Company, in a novel offering, including wire-walking in barrels, and musical and dancing exhibition, and a unique girl, formed another leading number. The three Brownies, dancers and skaters, Francis and Palmer, a singing and talking duo, rounded out the bill.

Dogs at the Lubin.

At the Lubin last night the Rand Musical Dogs drew most of the applause. They do everything but talk, play a medley of musical instruments, and have a line of tricks which speaks well for their trainer.

Stewart Paton re-enacts "The Belles" with sufficient faithfulness to the late Sir Henry Irving to get by easily, and takes with those who love a stark mystery surrounded by wintry gales. He played with a special company, and scored a hit.

Miller and Thompsons present a sister act which pleases, and Alice Day, a fetching comedienne, whatever that is, fetches her comedy into the hearts of the audience. Three well-
